

ABSTRACT

A system and method is provided for constructing an elongated pump. The pump has multiple stages within an outer housing. Each stage comprises an impeller and a diffuser. The diffusers are divided into separate groups that are compressed during construction of the pump.